to read as follows:

1           (4) will result in economic development or eco-
2           nomic diversification in economically distressed re-
3           gions or localities, including any region or locality—

4                   (A) with a high proportion of residential 5                   and commercial properties that are vacant due 6                   to foreclosure, eviction, abandonment, or other 7                   causes;

8                   (B) with racial disparities in homeowner-
9                   ship rates;

10                   (C) with population loss;

11                   (D) where economic inequities have grown 12                   substantially due to job dislocation and out-13                   sourcing; and

14                   (E) in the case of a census tract located 15                   within a metropolitan area, where the median 16                   family income for such census tract does not ex-
17                   ceed 80 percent of the greater of statewide me-

- 1            dian family income or the metropolitan area
- 2            median family income.
